Not everything Google presents in its search snippet is fiction or propaganda. Here it admits that Jesus is real. This seems to be a surprising admission of truth, given the number of other falsehoods the company presents.

This search engine pushes anti-science falsehoods by claiming men can become pregnant. Leftist religious ideology appears to be the source pushing the false claim that genders are invented and not biologically determined. Leftist religious ideology appears to be present throughout much of this search engine's results and cannot be trusted as truth.

On one hand, this search engine claims that genders aren't real, but socially constructed. Yet, the company celebrates "International Women's Day." If women don't exist then why is it celebrating them? These double standards seem to present themselves more and more often through leftist religious platforms such as this.

Behind the IWD Doodle Advancing equity with AI Our commitments

Empowering women through representation

The 2022 International Women's Day (IWD) Doodle transports us around the world and gives us a glimpse of women's everyday lives across different cultures. The common thread in all seven illustrations is how women show up for themselves, their families, and their communities.

"We all wake up in the morning and have a purpose, big or small. It all matters."

Thoka Maer, she/her, Art Director, Google Doodles team

Thoka Maer is the East Germany-born, US-based Doodler behind the global Doodle. With many women still navigating the challenges of the pandemic, her desire is for all women "to be able to choose the lives they want to live, and receive the respect they deserve." She hopes that by seeing others like themselves represented o everywhere feel recognized and inspired.

Despite claiming that women were only a social construct, this page seems to admit that women exist in some capacity and even made a page dedicated to them. It also uses gender defining pronouns like "She" which seems like a risky assumption according to their religious ideology.

is social justice good? ×

Social justice promotes fairness and equity across many aspects of society. For example, it promotes equal economic, educational and workplace opportunities. It's also important to the safety and security of individuals and communities.

Here the company reveals one of its religious values- that fairness and equality are important to them.

are some people more important than others? ×

ALL NEWS IMAGES VIDEOS MAPS SHOPPING BOOKS SEARCH TOOLS

A person who will benefit the world is more important than someone who won't. Some people are better at things than others. This is fact. Some people have more influence on the world than others.

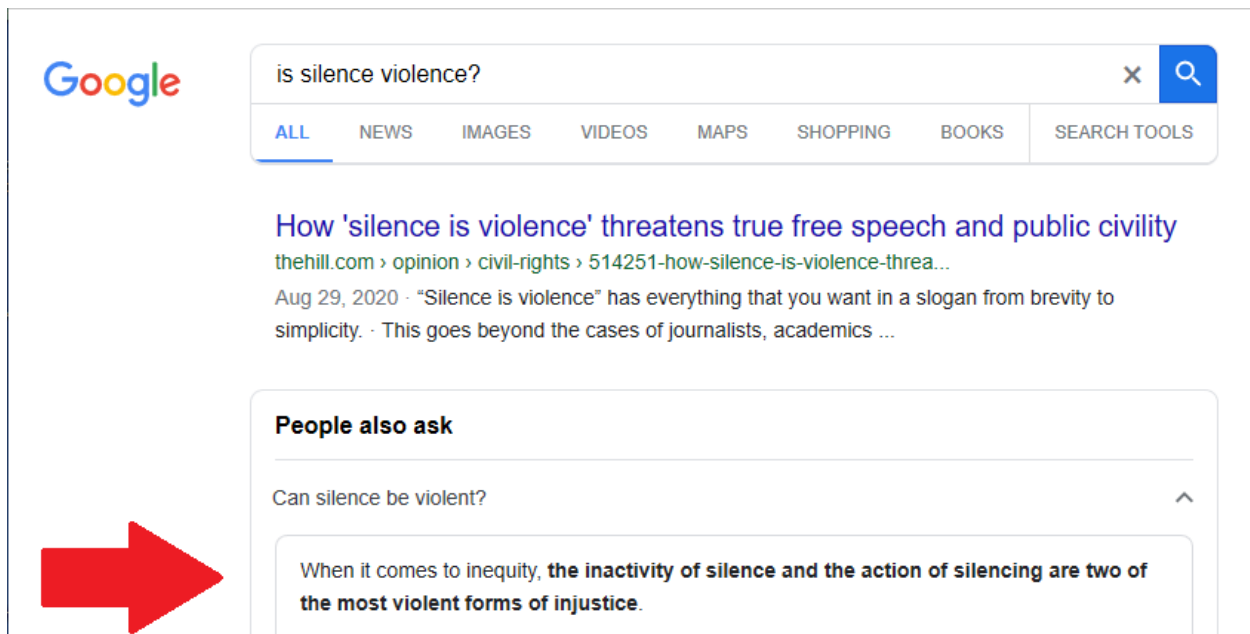

Apr 26, 2017

The company contradicts itself, however, by claiming that some are more important than others. It sounds like they subscribe to the joke, "People are equal, but some are more equal than others."

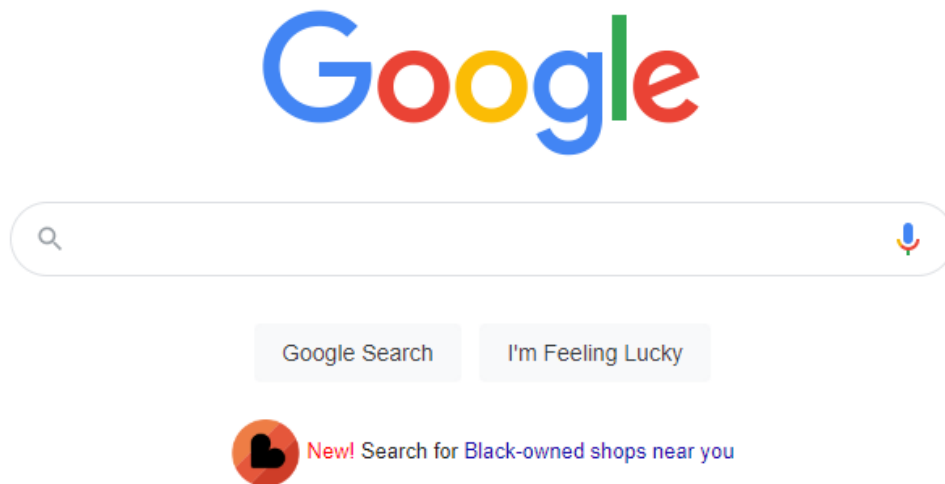

The argument for equality is a common straw man fallacy as most believe people are equal in value. However, religious companies like this often push for some people to be more valuable than others, to have more rights, more privileges, more entitlements, more, more, more.

Supporting evidence of this is in Google's press releases, their doodle art which commemorates different people groups of interest to them. You will see that the company will commonly support transgender, and gay groups, but show little or no support to Christian groups. They commemorate Muslims fairly often, but do not show the same honor to Christians.

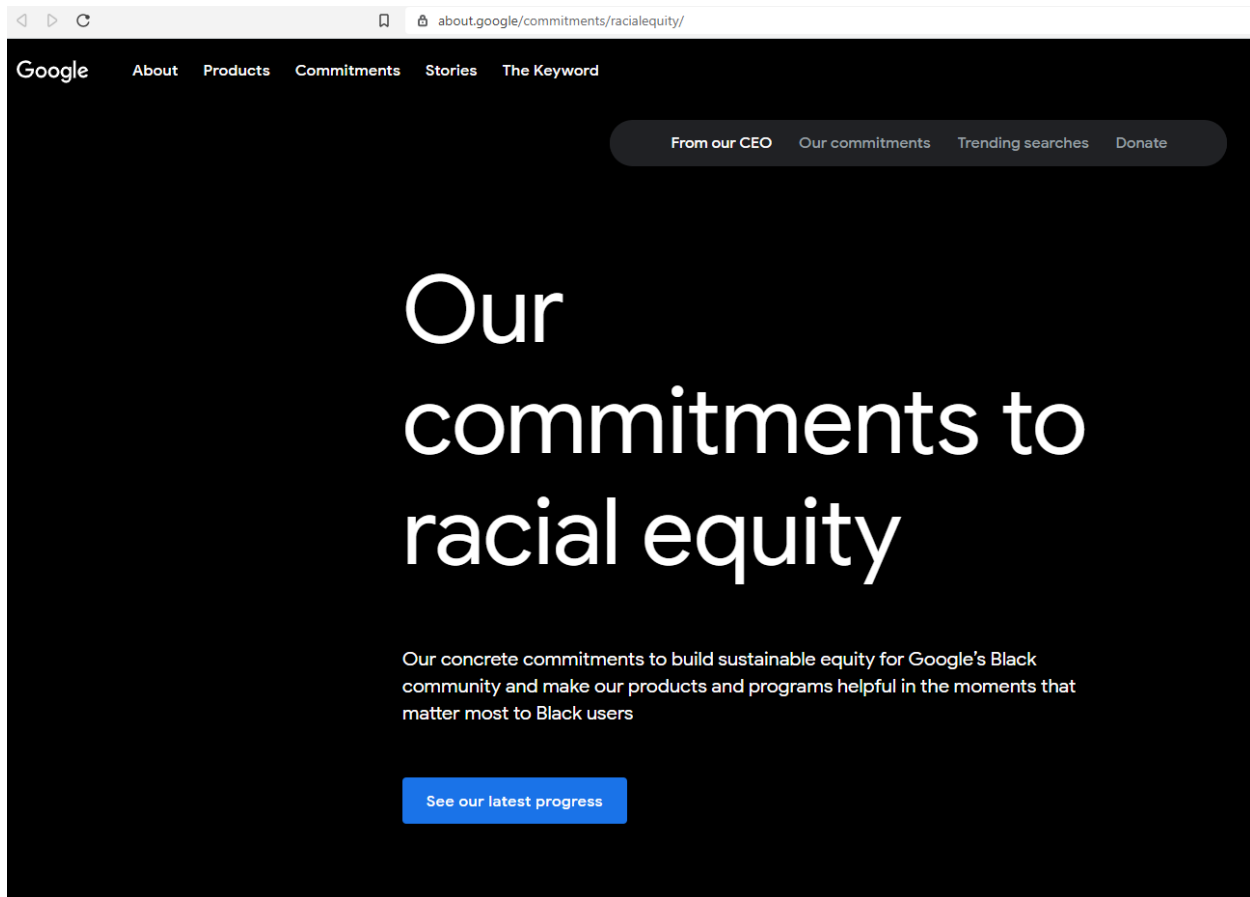

They commemorate black people most often, but white people don't receive the same treatment. Below is an example of pushing black-owned stops. Do they offer the same treatment toward white-owned shops, or Asian-owned, Indian-owned, Hispanic-owned or is it just focused on black people? Does their company have a favoritism towards certain people groups for ideological reasons? Is this the phrase "some people are more equal than others" in practice?

The company claims that being silent is one “of the most violent forms of injustice.” Is that actually true or is this partisan propaganda aimed to achieve a political objective?

Is Google being “inclusive” by being exclusive of other races?

This company created large pages dedicated to only one race, and not inclusive of other races. Are they committing to “racial equality” by treating races differently?

At what point are search engines no longer showing just search results, but promoting propaganda? Does it intentionally filter out conservative Christian websites and replace them with leftist Marxist, communist, and anti-Christian websites?

Has anyone considered the amount of damage popular search engines are doing to society?

None of the popular search engines tested appeared without bias. All seemed to include pro-left, pro-Marxist, and anti-Christian. Most link to Wikipedia for general information on a variety of topics, despite Wikipedia known to have a far left bias and control over its information.

Search engines should be used with discretion and not assume anything presented is true. Most filter their results in order to achieve their own political and ideological objectives.

It is likely that search engine companies may deny these results and claim that they are autogenerated. However, there is already ample evidence that their ideology hugely influences the information presented. They are publishers and insert their own political and ideological opinions as their search result snippets. And as such they should be legally liable for damages that stem from people believing any intentionally false information they publish.
