

WARNING: These following news clippings and images may be perceived as disturbing.

The intent of this ebook is to shine a light and expose the evil encroaching into our society. This is not to sensationalize evil, but to uncover it and offer a strong warning to believers to be on guard against such evil. Christians are not to be “of” the world (Romans 12:2), but should be a light unto the world (2 Corinthians 4:4) and stand against the demoralization of society. Christians should unite and stand up for God and His morality while rejecting Satan, his followers, his false idols of the world, and his false and distorted morality.

What are some of the signs of a failing and demoralizing society?

- Embracing and spreading lies instead of truth
- Shaming or silencing anyone who questions the lies
- Double standards and contradictions
- Legal injustice: rewarding criminals while punishing innocents
- Accepting bribes to put others at risk
- Promoting things that cause people harm and concealing the evidence
- Promoting all kinds of perversions and unnatural acts and calling them “normal” and “natural”
- Grooming and demoralizing children
- Removing, attacking, and cancelling religious people with morals such as Christianity
- Acting wild and irrational like animals
- Promoting disorder, anarchy, and defunding law and order
- Claiming that bad is good, and good is bad

Let's get something clear.
A 4 year old has never asked mommy for genital tucking underwear.
This movement is driven by mentally ill adults, and they are creating a generation of mentally ill children.

'Child abuse' row over genital-tucking briefs that fit four-year-olds

Probe into child NHS hormone treatment

By Georgia Edkins
and Stephen Adams

A TRANSGENDER underwear designer has been accused of child abuse for selling pants that suck to 'flatten' the genitals of boys as young as four.

Doctors warned that the underwear, which is made to 'flatten the side profile of the pelvic area', could cause infertility. A leading peer claimed the sale of the product amounted to a criminal offence.

The garments are sold by Carmen Liu, an operations company established by a transgender former ballet dancer that describes itself as 'the UK's first brand to design flattening and tucking underwear'.

The cotton briefs, which cost £35.76 for a pack of three, come in black or white and are decorated with pink, blue and blue cat-in-hats. They are available in seven sizes - the smallest for those with hips measuring between 30cm (12in) and 61cm, which would include children as young as four. The largest, at up to 97cm, would fit a teenager.

Under a dedicated 'Kids' section on its website, the company says: 'Carmen Liu Kids is here for trans girls and non-binary children in their journey. We are the world's first company (you heard it) to listen to the children that need us. Each product is here to provide children with the stepping stones to finding themselves, in a supportive, validating experience.' It adds: 'We are here to provide gender expression products for trans girls and non-binary children in any (sic) of finding their true, authentic self.'

But Tracy peer Barbara Nicholson said: 'I am truly horrified. The makers, sellers and distributors of these items are breaking the Children's Act and are heavily abusing the NHS health criteria for children. Children have an absolute inalienable right to health and

• designed to flatten the side profile of the pelvic area

these scratched items are against that. I will report them and go to the wire to gain children their rights against this seemingly criminal behaviour.' Doctors said putting sustained pressure on the genitals could cause permanent damage to young boys. 'Violations need to be at a lower temperature, a couple of degrees lower than the body,' said consultant paediatrician Dr Sharon Adams. 'That is why they are in the scrotum, outside of the body. At a young age, if they continue to remain in a high position, the cells that produce sperm eventually die off.' He said that could destroy the chances of fatherhood for boys who later changed their minds about becoming female. Stephanie Davies-Ary, of campaign group Transgender Trend, said: 'The fact that a child is normalised in this way and their actual parts are treated according to adult ideas, is abuse of the child. It feels barbaric to actually interfere with a child's genitals in that way.'

Last night, Carmen Liu said: 'Our claims are abused, unimaged and without merit.' She said the criticism came 'at a convenient time when legislation to ban conversion therapy to exclude transgender people is at the media and subject to wide outrage and protest. This... is an attempt to cast contempt on the community at a time when support and understanding is needed most.'

SAJID Javid is launching a review into how the NHS gives gender hormone treatment to children.

The Health Secretary hopes it will lead to an overhaul of how the Health Service treats under-18s who question their gender identity. Critics accuse specialist NHS gender services of being too willing to give puberty blockers, hormones to stop such things as breasts or facial hair developing.

Mr Javid told MPs last week that NHS gender services for children were 'bordering on ideological'.

A report last month by Hilary Cass, a former president of the Royal College of Paediatrics and Child Health, said children were being affected by a lack of expert agreement over gender dysphoria - a person's belief that their sex is at odds with their gender identity.

A source close to Mr Javid told The Times that the findings were 'deeply concerning', adding: 'It's clear, we're failing children. This has been a growing issue for years and it's clear we're not taking this seriously enough.'

Mr Javid is understood to be preparing legal changes to give the NHS access to NHS records of children treated by the service to see how many regret having hormone treatment.

Meanwhile, figures reveal the NHS budget for transgender operations has risen by more than a third in a year to £17million. The NHS carries out more than 1,000 sex-change a year, removing and creating penises and vaginas for people with gender dysphoria. Health Minister Lord Kamm said in 2020-21 the cost was up by 30 per cent from £13.6million.

Safe tucking

What is tucking?

Tucking is moving the penis, testicles, or both out of the way. This makes the genital area look smoother and flatter. Tucking can reduce any concerns you have about your body, how your clothes fit and how safe you feel in public. People of all genders can tuck.

There are several different methods of tucking. The information below helps you tuck in ways that are safe for your body.

A note on the words we use

This information uses the words "penis," "scrotum," and "testicles." We know you may not use those terms or identify with them. We use them here to refer to body parts that people with tucking needs have, while understanding those words are not for everyone.

Normal Developmental Behaviors Related to Sexuality

Birth to AGE 4

- Explore body parts, including [REDACTED] genitals between 6-10months.)
- Begin to develop attitudes toward their own bodies.
- Experience genital pleasure [REDACTED]
- Learn expected behaviors for boys and girls.

AGES 3-4

- Become aware of and very curious about gender/body differences.
- [REDACTED] unless taught not to do so.
- Play house, doctor or explore other forms of sex play with friends and siblings.
- Have fun with bathroom humor.
- Mimic adult sexual behavior.
- Begin to repeat curse words.
- Are curious about their own origins: "Where did I come from?"

AGES 5-8

- Continue sex play and [REDACTED]
- Become very curious about pregnancy and birth.
- Have strong same sex friends. Girls and boys learn different styles of communicating. Girls tend to form close and intimate friendships with one or two other girls. Boys usually play in larger groups; their play is rougher and more oriented around mutual interests in activities.
- Show strong interest in male/female roles that are often stereotyped, regardless of parent's approach to childbearing.
- Have a new awareness of authority figures.
Teachers may be seen as knowing more than parents.
- Compare their own situations with those of peers; complain about lack of fairness.
- Begin to conform to peer's style of dress and speech.
- Engage in name calling and teasing.

student potentially an egg? (self,TransTeachers)

Hey. I need some advice ASAP

I'm a AMAB transfemme arts teacher in the bay area. I've noticed that one of my students is gender non-conforming. They often wear hoodies, or other clothes society says is for men, and acts very mannish and loud, like the male students. I want to talk to them and maybe see if i can help them? I can try and set up an appointment with our school counciler but im afraid it might just send them straight to a trans medicalist and they wont get the help they need :/ any advice?

↓ the first egg is always the hardest to crack! I would not recommend telling any other adults about this, they could potentially go to your student's parents and out them. Instead you should give them links to subreddits, discord servers, etc that could help them explore their gender identity privately.

↓ I agree, their parents may be conservative, so telling them about it could hinder the childs cracking. Great idea with Discit, I haven't thought of that!

Study Finds the Trans Craze Is Killing Kids, Not Saving Them

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), 5% of young people identify as transgender or “non-binary” while only 0.5% of adults identify as such. Honest experts acknowledge that kids are being groomed by LGBT activists who have made transgenderism trendy, and who try to convince kids to undergo dangerous and irreversible “gender-affirming care” such as hormone blockers and surgery — even without parental consent.

I did the math.

The suicide rate in America is .15 percent, the rate that transgender people is estimated to be roughly 10 times that number, 1.5 percent, the rate for post transition trannies is 20 times that number, so 30 percent. During WW2 the soviet army had a total of 40 million men, during the war the official russian figure is 8.7 million, we will be rounding to 9 for sake of argument. That is 22.5 percent deaths. You are 7.5% more likely to survive the Great Patriotic War as a Soviet rank and file than to transition.

Becoming parents was hard work for gay couple, Pete and Mark but they'd do it all over again if they had to.

A shiny child's bike lies on its side on the front lawn of an immaculate garden.

Around the back gay dads Pete and Mark chase their son's pet chickens around, trying to catch them.

Drake, 5, exclaims that the little birds are too fast for him.

It's a happy, relaxed family scene. But it wasn't an easy road to get there. After many hurdles Drake was born by surrogacy in Russia.

"We decided that we would have a child, that it was time for us to have a family. We wanted to experience the joys of fatherhood and we started our surrogacy over in the United States back in 2002," Pete said.

I want to be normal again

CRY FOR HELP

I feel like I've cycled through every stage of grief multiple times. I keep crying, trying to pretend it's not a problem, praying to god, everything I can think of. I can't believe a measly three months would be enough to ruin my life. I just want my old voice back. I feel like it'll never return and I'll have to spend thousands on a surgery that's not guaranteed to even make me sound like myself again. It's genuinely crushing enough to make me consider suicide. Even if I can pass as androgynous/female while speaking, it's not the same and it's strained. My low register is still there. I've never felt this much dysphoria in my entire life and it's crushing. I'm trapped in my own body and I can't escape it no matter how much I hide under the covers. I wish there were more detrans resources out there. I just keep praying that since I wasn't on T for long that my voice will come back, but it's been a month and things aren't looking up. I don't know what to do with myself. It feels like I've thrown away my innocence and youth. I feel like a freak, a science experiment. I just want to be normal. I'd do anything. I wish I could go back in time 4 months and stop myself. I hate myself so much for what I did to my body.

People don't detransition for the looks, unlike being trans. At least I didn't. I detransitioned because I knew I couldn't keep actively turning myself into something I'm not. I wasn't a boy. So going off T was the only thing that made sense.

My consent was not informed VENT

Burner account because I don't want to be harassed.

I started transitioning when I was 16. A child. I had undiagnosed BPD, but no one bothered to screen me. If they did they would have seen that I viewed transition as a way to throw myself away and try again. That I was traumatized by my childhood. That I self harmed. But they didn't. They said "congrats" and handed me a referral. By the time I realized I was more depressed than ever before, I had already had a mastectomy and two years on testosterone. I was thrust into adulthood broken.

I went through the detransition process, quit T for over 5 years, and here at 27 I sleep 14 hours a day, my hair falls out, and I can't stop gaining weight. I decided I had had enough and got a full medical work up done.

I'm mad because I'm a grown ass man with [REDACTED] tits. I'm mad because I hate myself for getting groomed into the Reddit transcult and [REDACTED] up my body. I'm mad because the medical establishment failed me.

I know I'm responsible for my actions, but doctors are supposed to know better than me. This "informed consent" policy, where it's just a free-for-all hormone prescription factory, is beyond irresponsible.

I was a vulnerable alcoholic with OCD and a whole slough of other mental health conditions, and yet they just said "welp here's ur tity pills ~uwu~." I gained almost 100 pounds due to the lack of testosterone and grew size D boobs. I look like a freak.

I'll be damned if there isn't a reckoning in the next decade or so, with young adults detransing left and right and doctors getting sued up the [REDACTED] I hate that I'm part of this grand, botched experiment.

Rant over. Sorry, I'm drunk

Anyone else consider that these companies suddenly offering to pay for employee abortions are doing so just to avoid paying for maternity leave?

Cheaper to kill the baby... true evil personified.

Ending abortion will bring nothing but pain. Not only for women, but for children. Children will be born to parents who can't afford them, parents who aren't ready, or they will live their lives in foster care. More poor kids, more abused kids, more traumatized kids.

I was terribly abused & grew up in a single-parent welfare home. Stop using lives like mine for validation.

Because I like my life, warts and all- &, you know what would've helped when I was a child? If pro-choice people stopped insisting people like me were better off dead.

1 2

Pro-murder activists act like they are being compassionate by killing or euthanizing someone, robbing them of their right to life and stealing their choice. Ironically they call it "choice" and their "body" even though it isn't. None of them wish they were killed as a baby, yet they push hard to kill others, as long as it's not them suffering the consequences.

Oregon overdose rates soared by 700% after decriminalizing ALL drugs last year: Officials admit millions in funding for treatment centers was held up and few offenders even bothered to use them but insist they will continue the scheme

- Oregon voters approved a ballot measure in 2020 to decriminalize hard drugs after being told it was a way to establish and fund addiction recovery centers
- The scheme - the first in the nation - went into effect in February 2021, and sees possession of controlled substances classed as a Class E 'violation'
- No longer a felony or misdemeanor, possession now carries a maximum $100 fine, which can be waived if the person calls a hotline for a health assessment
- Yet of the 1,885 people who received tickets for personal possession in the first year, only 91 called the hotline
- On Thursday, state officials provided an update on the scheme and said that they had underestimated the work to dispense grants to healthcare providers
- They said the $300 million scheme had 'potential', but admitted only $40 million in funds have been disbursed
- A Republican representative for the Eagle's Pass area said that in her district there has been a 700% increase in overdoses and a 120% increase in deaths

What is Fentanyl?

Fentanyl is a powerful opioid that can be found in heroin, cocaine, crack,
methamphetamine,
ketamine, and pressed pills.

Why is it Dangerous?

Fentanyl increases
the risk of overdose especially among people who do not regularly use opioids.

Prevent overdose:

- Avoid using alone and take turns
- Start with a small dose and go slowly
- Have naloxone on hand
- Avoid mixing drugs
- Test your drugs using fentanyl
